I didn't get to talk to Bird much, but from the couple of times that I did, he was very polite. There was just something about him that hit you like, "he's a pretty good kid". I can tell from everyone else's comments in this guest book that this was who Bird was, a well mannered young man with a future ahead of him. We will miss seeing him riding around East Potomac St. in Brunswick. Your family is in our prayers.##imported-begin##Seth J. Elder##imported-end##

To the family of 'Bird', I express my deepest sympathy. I met your beloved one through my nephew. One Sunday evening, 'Bird' joined us for dinner and it was a pleasure having him with us that day. He was a well mannered young man and we enjoyed his company so that we invited him to have dinner with us the following Sunday. I know he will be missed. When you are overwhelmed with grief please hold on to the wonderful memories you shared with him.###imported-begin###Tamala Sappington###imported-end##

Actually "Bird" and my daughter "Taylor" went out for a while and I must say I thought he was a very special young man. When he lived with his grandmother in Stephens, Va. we lived in Albin Village subdivision very close to him and I would see him walking all the time. Taylor was also a football manager so she knew him through all of high school and four years of football. My thoughts and prayers are with you. May in Rest In Peace.##imported-begin##Carolyn Patterson##imported-end##
