You saw where he spent six years in School of Architecture which we always thought was simply you. He has your tools with him then and now. And, where he graduated from his high school Bishop Ireton and then his Bachelors four years after and his Masters two years later. The Basilica is so over whelming and religiously beautiful. Pete stood on that altar three times in his college drape and handed the children their respective diplomas with the Bishop over the last several years. Now you can see into a part of all our lives and how rich and wonderful the experiences were. Thinking of you on your four year anniversary with our Lord. Love, Cristian, your third born

Dearest Daddy - I saw so much of you in Brendan's enthusiasm for architecture not only as he presented his project in front of the jury, but as he walked down the aisle to receive his diploma for his masters degree; and once again to receive his award from the department. His project is displayed on the walls of the Crough Center for all the people in the world to see and view as they make their decision to attend this outstanding school. Your talents live on. I hope you were able to see it all too. Love Christian and your namesake Brendan Thurman.

Dearest Daddy - it has been the most bittersweet day - Indian Summer weather and the anniversary of your death - two years ago. Bridget went to the La Sagrada Familla - Basilica of the Holy Family in Barcelona a few days ago, and a lit a candle in your remembrance. Brendan was there for five months earlier this year and also lit candles and prayed for both of his beloved grandparents. We never knew, until last week, that both of them would travel to the same holy grounds in Europe and pray at the same church in the same year. When the church is finished - it will have eighteen towers, twelve dedicated to the apostles, four to the evangelists, one to Jesus and one to Mary. May they hold you and keep you in their peace. Love, Cristian, your third born.

Clancey, Mary Beth, Crissy and Valerie, I can recall more than one occasion of your Grampa Jack and Gramma Lorraine Thurman, while they were in the living room or dinning room of their farmhouse, when it would likely be Gramma Lorraine who would look out the window and say "it looks like someone is pullin' into the yard", and Grampa Jack would ask 'is it one of ours?' "Most members of the Thurman family have witnessed at least one of those times with the folks, which makes the point that Grampa Jack never failed to claim his own and knowing that about him has always reminded me that each of us are natural children of man but also, each of us has a soul therefore each of us are Divine children of our Creator. That thought, of being Divine children of Our Lord makes me think of Matthew 18: 3-4 ...Truly, I say to you, unless you turn and become like children, you will never enter the kingdom of heaven" Dennis F. Thurman was haunted by the uncertainty of believing that life happens in 'fast time', an experience with thoroughbred horses, fast cars, a gambler making fast deals or of being a 'quick draw sheriff' during the days of the Wild West. Dennis probably never thought that there would ever be a day when he would become like a child, but I believe that day happened for Dennis sometime last Friday when he began to see past what was quick in his life and then seeing beyond to what could be forever in his life – and on Saturday that vision sent him to his knees where he wrapped his arms around the legs of Jesus Christ and asked Our Lord for His forgiveness. At that, there was light coming from the many doors that began to open to him and in one of the doorways was a woman – her name was Rene' and she held out her hand to Dennis and said " come on Dennis, lets walk, I want you to meet Him" Your Uncle, Patrick##imported-begin##Patrick M.
