I have such wonderful memories of our Moore Christmas and Luau Parties at Uncle Marvin and Aunt Marguerite's house with Karen, Marcia, David, Danny, and Mikey. All of us cousins, uncles, aunties, and grandparents would gather up and be one huge, happy family!!! At one of those Christmas parties in the early 70s, I was performing one of my Soul Train dance numbers, "Jungle Boogie," for the family. Uncle Marvin was amused with the sound from a particular instrument and would emulate it in a growling fashion, like a tiger, as he pretended to attack Aunt Marguerite or chase some of the kids. I loved him and I'm so sorry I can't be with all of you at this time. May God bless all of your hearts now and forever. Love, Robin Moore

One of my first memories of Uncle Marvin is when the parents put all of us cousins in PJ's and we watched the first landing of man on the moon at his house. Moore memories, eating holiday meals at their house, a huge full size poodle jumping on me that knocked me over, when I returned from Texas Uncle Marvin and Aunt Marguerite gave me a job calling folks to take piano lessons, my father and he would joke about the Navy and the Marines, thanks to them for serving.
 Seeing pictures of him on the floor playing with his grandchildren.He was there when I needed a hug or just a smile letting me know all would be ok. I will miss him dearly.

They say I was born a few months before Uncle Marvin married the girl of his dreams. My first memory of Uncle Marvin is spending the night with his family, Aunt Marguerite, Karen, Marcia, David, Danny and Mike. Or the time we all watched the landing on the moon. However, the best memories that stay with me are when he would put his arms around me and tell me everything would be all right. Love you Uncle Marvin, please say hi to Dad when you see him. Thank you for serving our country, you are a great man.

Marvin was my boss at the Bailys Crossroads store. He taught me how to dress, how to present myself to customers, and how to do all of the things I needed. He was a true friend. Joe Pinson Assistant Professor, Texas Woman's University - retired
