We were just about to send out Christmas cards this year and, trying to verify his address, discovered Tyler's obituary, a very sad thing to see. I grew up with Tyler, going to elementary school and high school with him in Fairfax. We flew model airplanes together and generally got into some fun mischief with minibikes and motorcycles and finally cars. I sent him a note last year to say that he figured prominently as a character in my novel, The House Across the Street. I never heard back from him. Another of his friends and I were just discussing him at Thanksgiving, laughing about some of our mutual misadventures. He was a great guy and a fun character with a dry and sometimes pleasantly warped sense of humor. I pray that the Lord welcomed him home.

I worked with TYLER in his early days of Stohlman VW. He was one of the kindest souls I have ever known and had a wicked sense of humor. At one time he pointed out to me that he was part of a unique group who worked at Stohlman- the Akes, Paines and Sorrows. TYLER Ake of course, Mell Paine and Mike Sorrow. I will never forget him.

I was fortunate enough to work with Tyler for several years at the hobby shop. We bonded over loving animals, and talking about various animal rescue videos we saw online. Tyler was truly an amazing man, he was such a gentle and kind soul. My condolences to his family.
