This is insane! I had no idea you passed away. I was trying to find him and reach back out with him again. I worked with Dieter about a decade ago. We traveled to sites nationwide installing network equipment. I remember Philadelphia the most. I remember me him and another coworker walking around for HOURS after work looking for a place to eat. They kept going from restaurant to restaurant not making up their minds. Meanwhile I was hungry ready to eat at ANY restaurant and I eventually snapped at them and said pick a place already. They thought it was hilarious and said I was hangry and they finally agreed on a place. They never let that go and made fun of me everyday about it after that. I have more memories going to bars and trying out new places. Dieter was fun to hang out with though so he really will be missed.
